

Ipomoea sagittifolia

Ipomoea sagittifolia is a species of morning glory in the genus Ipomoea.<sup>[2][1]</sup> It is native to Africa, India, the Malay Archipelago, and Australia. It was erroneously reported to occur in Taiwan.<sup>[1]</sup>

It is used in traditional Indian medicine because its seeds contains the indole alkaloids ipobscurine A, B, and C.<sup>[3]</sup>

This Solanales article is a stub. You can help Wikipedia by expanding it.

